As I'm writing this article on Wednesday morning, the rain is falling outside my office window. There is a cup of coffee steaming next to me—I'm waiting for it to cool down enough to drink. My Lenten devotional for the day has been read and marked up (I'm one of those people that reads with a pen in hand). My research for Sunday's sermon and tonight's Bible Study are done. And so, I have this wonderfully quiet, relaxing moment to write and reflect on my faith.

Quiet moments like this one are precious to me. We live in a very noisy world, one that is always clamoring for attention. The ACC tournament has started and, while I love that tournament, I can see all the ads on my Facebook feed and hear them all on the radio telling me when to tune in for pre-game coverage, post-game analysis, previews of tomorrow's games, implications for the NCAA tournament—as well as the actual game itself. If I log onto YouTube, my Subscription page is quick to tell me about all the channels that have uploaded videos I ought to watch and the YouTubers themselves are quick to tell me that I need to, "Like, Comment, Subscribe, and hit the Notification bell!" The world we've built for ourselves is noisy.

It reminds me of the story of Elijah on Mount Horeb in 1 Kings 19. For some context, Elijah had just defeated the prophets of Baal in dramatic fashion on Mount Carmel and run back to Jezreel ahead of Ahab's chariot. The drought in Israel had also finally broken. And Jezebel had threatened Elijah, saying, "So may the gods do to me, and more also, if I do not make your life like the life of one of them by this time tomorrow" (1 Kings 19:2). Elijah fled from this threat to a cave on Mount Horeb, knowing full well that Jezebel could follow through on it and have him killed by the next day. And so we find the prophet alone, scared, and wondering where God is. In the midst of all the noise and craziness within his own life, Elijah is desperate to speak to God.

I love the way that God meets him. God tells Elijah to go out onto the mountain, "for the Lord is about to pass by" (19:11a). Then, a great wind blows up that could split mountains, an earthquake comes, and finally a fire—all signs that God was about to pass by the mountain (19:11b-12a). But then the NRSV offers a unique translation that captures this moment beautifully. It says, "and after the fire a sound of sheer silence. When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. Then there came a voice to him that said, 'What are you doing here, Elijah?" (19:12b-13). After all the noise of the wind, the earthquake, and the fire, Elijah hears sheer silence. And that's where he knows he will meet God—in the quiet moment. God meets Elijah in the silence and then gently asks the prophet, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" God comes alongside the prophet to pick him up, dust him off, and remind him that he is not alone—God is still with him.

I love that image of God cutting through all the noise in Elijah's life to create some peace and quiet for the prophet. God stops the noise and invites Elijah into a calm, quiet conversation, where the prophet can be heard by his God. Sometime this week, if you are able, I'd encourage you to find some quiet time to spend with God. In that quiet, what do you want to say to God? And what might God be saying to you?

Grace and peace, Pastor Ben

The Hope Valley Baptist Church book club will meet at 7:00 pm March 31 via Zoom to discuss this month's selection, The Best of Enemies by Osha Gray Davidson. This non-fiction book is about school desegregation battles in Durham and the unlikely friendship between a black female Civil Rights activist and an official in the Ku Klux Klan who were assigned to work together on a planning committee. The book was made into a movie in 2019. The Durham Public Library has hard copies of the book as well as copies in eBook and audio book formats, and it is also available through local and online bookstores.

HVBC Reads meets at 7:00 pm on the last Thursday each month. The meetings are currently taking place via Zoom but that may change in the future.

Here's a list of what's coming up:

April 28 Same Kind of Different as Me, Ron Hall and Denver Moore May 26 Consider the Birds, Debbie Blue

Note that it may be challenging to find copies of Consider the Birds, which has only a single eBook available at the Durham Public Library. However, you can find both new and used copies available online or in local bookstores. Check used bookstores and thrift shops as well for inexpensive copies. The hunt is part of the thrill!

Contact Rhonda Welfare (rhonda@welfare-world.com or 919-599-7367) for more information or to join the discussion.

The missions team has been planning a few activities to restart Operation InAsMuch again this year!

We have come up with 3 activities to help show Christ's love to those in need and show appreciation to our health care workers. Activities to be completed week of March 27-April 2.

1. Projects:

We will be making gift bags for nurses in the COVID unit and pediatric ICU at UNC Hospital. Our goal is to make 120 bags. The bags will include:

*Homemade cookies—we need 30 dozen cookies. Please let the church office know how many cookies you can make. Please individually pack 3 cookies per sandwich bag so there is less handling by people. Cookies should be delivered to the office by Sunday, March 27.

*Handwritten thank you notes: (there will be template of what to write if you need it).

*Individual wrapped or rolls of mints.

*Small pocket sized hand lotions.

*Chapstick/Lip Balm

- 2. Collection of new socks and underwear for men, women, children to be delivered to Urban Ministries.
- 3. Volunteers to make fleece blankets to give to Duke's Lenox Baker children's clinic. We do have a few sets of materials available to make the blankets or if you have your own materials that is fine too.

Thanks for all you do!
